

JAMES OLIVER,
221 Chestnut St.,
PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, April 7th 1890

Agent of the United States Philadelphia
Gentlemen

Your favor of this date came duly to hand, and I very much regret, that the last Bale of $\frac{1}{4}$ Sheetings I sent you, does not prove satisfactory, and I will take it away, as soon as a Bale arrives from the Mill, the same make as you last had from me. These goods are now on the way, and I look for their arrival any day.
In the mean time, you are at liberty to use what you can out of the Bale you have, keeping an accurate account of the pieces and yards you use, and I will take the balance away, when I deliver the other Bale, and am

Yours Truly, Respectfully
James Oliver

NARA RG104, Entry 1, Box 162

James Oliver,
221 Chestnut St.,
Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, April 7, 1890

Mint of the United States Philadelphia

Gentlemen

Your favor of this date came duly to hand, and I very much regret, that the last Bale of 4/4 Sheetings I sent you, does not prove satisfactory, and I will take it away, as soon as a Bale arrives from the Mill, the same make as you last had from me. These goods are now on the way, and I look for their arrival any day.

In the mean time, you are at liberty to use what you can out of the Bale you have, keeping an accurate account of the pieces and yards you use, and I will take the balance away, when I deliver the other Bale, and am

Yours Very Respectfully
James Oliver